

White paper · [Industry]

Title in black, ending in red.

Subtitle in lead style: one sentence, sentence case, stating what the reader will learn.

Section heading (H2)

Body copy, 9.25/13.5 pt. Open with the industry reality, backed by a cited statistic.[1] Keep paragraphs to three or four sentences. Use bold run-in phrases sparingly to mark the key claim in a paragraph.

Write in the Sonim voice: confident, genuine, informative and passionate. Be positive and grounded; state the point without extra flourish.

Aim for 180–220 words in this column on the opening page.

Section label

Lead paragraph, 12.5/16.5 pt. Two to three lines that frame the page's argument.

Two-column body copy. Use when the page carries more than ~120 words of running text above a visual component.

Columns share the 14 pt grid gutter. Keep citations as red superscripts.[2]
